Table 1. Managing Contamination Through Color-Coding

Type of Contamination	Examples of Incidents in a Processing Plant	Color-Coding Controls
Direct contamination: transfer of human pathogens to food or food contact surface.	Employee working at RTE area did not wash hands properly.	Ensure proper hand-washing. Use a nailbrush under the nails where bacteria and norovirus may lodge.
Cross-contamination: transfer of pathogens from food or a surface to another food or food contact surface.	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>Shovel for scooping raw meat was used to handle processed product.</li> <li>A tube brush for cleaning drains was found on a cookie conveyor.</li> <li>A white tub trolley for handling rejects was used to store cooked macaroni.</li> </ul>	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>Color-code shovels. Use segregated shadow-board stations.</li> <li>Use color tools for drains; hang them at their stations after use.</li> <li>Use separate colors. If not available, label trolleys and keep in separate zones.</li> </ul>
Cross-contact: unintentional incorporation of a food allergen into another food through accidental transfer.	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>Paddle for stirring wheat dough was swapped with that for soy. Wheat product labels did not list soy.</li> <li>A red scoop for handling milk powder is cleaned and sanitized before handling soy, but some product was found on the surface after cleaning.</li> </ul>	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>Keep color-coded paddle for each allergen at segregated and designated shadow-board stations.</li> <li>Use hygienically designed color-coded, material-handling implements to prevent accidental cross-contact of allergens.</li> </ul>
